Criteria Required for Presidential Candidates A TIME TO REFLECT - Part 6

INTEGRITY: Our political system has not been responsive to the needs of the people. This has resulted in the perpetuation of extremely difficult problems over the last 20 years. The consequence is a people desperate and disillusioned, losing faith in democratic institutions, and having a grim outlook.

This is the situation our people are finding today.

Thus, it becomes a matter of urgency and survival that the people be able to choose wisely our next President, using three major criteria:

INTEGRITY: This is more than simple honesty. It is holding to one's principles in doing what is moral and right regardless of overwhelming odds. It is saying no to graft and corruption, to bribery, to no influence peddlers and political contributors.

COMPETENCE: This means that the President must have adequate education and experience in public office and must be able to immediately address the most complex problems of the country—poor and under-educating, population explosion, rising unemployment, deteriorating educational system, growing budget deficit, and loss of competitiveness in our agriculture and industrial sectors.

CHARITABLE: The President must be able to inspire, uplift all our people, and convince us to make sacrifices for the common good. Charisma is more than popularity. It is morality. It is strong leadership.

If you agree with these criteria, grade the presidential candidates by giving a maximum of 30% for integrity, 30% for competence and 30% for charisma.

After completing this game tonight, we always, as a people, show up to the occasion. Let us not lose faith in ourselves.

Bishops back Namfrel bid for election quick count

PUT LOGO HERE

By Maureen T. Ocampo

MANILA (Philippine Daily Inquirer) — The Philippine Bishops' Conference has endorsed the National Movement for Free Elections (Namfrel) bid to conduct a quick count for the May 2004 national elections.

The bishops' endorsement comes as Namfrel, a coalition of civil society groups, seeks to challenge the traditional role of the Commission on Elections (Comelec) in conducting the national elections.

The bishops' endorsement is seen as a significant boost for Namfrel's bid, as the church is a powerful institution in the Philippines.

The bishops' endorsement is also seen as a challenge to the Comelec's authority, as the church has a long history of advocating for free and fair elections.

Supplier says it'll take billions of years to crack vote counters

THE COMMISSIONER OF THE National Movement for Free Elections (Namfrel) has said it will take billions of years to crack the code of the electronic vote counters used by the Commission on Elections (Comelec).

Namfrel's bid to conduct a quick count for the May 2004 national elections has been met with skepticism by the Comelec, which claims that its electronic vote counters are invulnerable to hacking.

The Comelec's claim is based on the fact that its electronic vote counters use a complex encryption system that is difficult to crack.

However, Namfrel's commissioner, Maureen T. Ocampo, has said that she believes it is only a matter of time before someone will find a way to crack the code.

The second major task that would have to be completed in order to make the program a reality is to determine the number of people who would be interested in participating in the program. The program would have to be designed to meet the needs of the target population, and the program would have to be designed to be cost-effective.

EXPERT FORUM: THE GLOBAL SCENE
The Global Health Watch at Harvard University has released the world's first systematic analysis of global health trends. The report, Global Health Trends 2014, is the first in a series of reports that will track the progress of global health over the next 25 years. The report is based on data from the World Health Organization, the United Nations, and other international organizations. It shows that while there have been significant improvements in global health, there are still many challenges ahead. The report highlights the need for continued investment in global health and the importance of addressing the social determinants of health.

Firms plan court action to stop hike

MANILA, Dec. 2 (AP) — A group of firms, including the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry, has filed a petition with the Supreme Court to stop the government from raising the value-added tax (VAT) on imported goods. The firms argue that the hike will hurt the economy and the government's revenue. They also claim that the hike is unconstitutional. The Supreme Court is expected to hear the case in the coming months.

GMA asks energy board to reconsider

MANILA, Dec. 2 (AP) — The Government Media Agency (GMA) has asked the Energy Regulatory Board (ERB) to reconsider its decision to raise the rates for electricity. GMA claims that the ERB's decision is unfair and will hurt the public. It also claims that the ERB's decision is based on incorrect information. The ERB is expected to hear GMA's request in the coming months.

QC robbery spooks CPD

By Tim Breen

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A robbery in a quiet Philadelphia neighborhood last night spooked the city's police department, which is already on edge after a series of similar attacks in recent weeks.

The robbery, which took place in a small convenience store, was the latest in a string of similar attacks that have shaken the city's police department. The attacks, which have taken place in various parts of the city, have resulted in the deaths of several people and the injury of others.

The police department is currently investigating the attacks and has issued a public safety advisory to the public. The advisory urges the public to be vigilant and to report any suspicious activity to the police.

How to cook a perfect pot of rice . . .

By Jeffrey M. Hays
 A pot of rice is a staple of many households. It's a versatile, healthy, and delicious side dish that can be served with a variety of meats, vegetables, and other ingredients. The key to cooking a perfect pot of rice is to use the right ingredients and techniques. In this article, we will discuss the best way to cook a pot of rice, from choosing the right rice to the final garnishes.

Choosing the right rice
 The first step in cooking a perfect pot of rice is to choose the right rice. There are many different types of rice, each with its own unique flavor and texture. The most common types of rice are long-grain, medium-grain, and short-grain. Long-grain rice is the most versatile and is the best choice for a pot of rice. Medium-grain rice is slightly sticky and is best for dishes like fried rice. Short-grain rice is very sticky and is best for dishes like sushi.

Preparing the rice
 Once you have chosen the right rice, the next step is to prepare it. The first step is to rinse the rice thoroughly in cold water. This will remove any excess starch and prevent the rice from becoming too sticky. After rinsing, the rice should be drained and then cooked in a pot of boiling water. The water should be brought to a boil before the rice is added, and the heat should be reduced to a simmer once the rice is in the pot.

Adding the ingredients
 Once the rice is cooked, the next step is to add the other ingredients. The most common ingredients to add to a pot of rice are meat, vegetables, and herbs. The meat should be cooked separately and then added to the pot. The vegetables should be added to the pot and cooked for a few minutes before the rice is added. The herbs should be added to the pot and cooked for a few minutes before the rice is added.

Finishing the dish
 The final step in cooking a perfect pot of rice is to finish the dish. This can be done by adding a little bit of oil or butter to the pot. This will help to keep the rice from becoming too dry and will also help to keep the other ingredients from becoming too dry. The dish should be served hot and garnished with a little bit of fresh herbs.

Conclusion
 Cooking a perfect pot of rice is a simple task that can be done by anyone. The key is to use the right ingredients and techniques. By following the steps outlined in this article, you can ensure that your pot of rice is the best it can be. The next time you are looking for a quick and easy meal, a pot of rice is the perfect choice.

What if your Christmas dinner is a little bit different from the traditional turkey and ham? What if you want to serve something that is both healthy and delicious? The answer is yes, you can. There are many different ways to cook a Christmas dinner that is both healthy and delicious. In this article, we will discuss the best way to cook a Christmas dinner that is both healthy and delicious. We will discuss the best ingredients to use, the best cooking techniques, and the best garnishes to use.

Choosing the right ingredients
 The first step in cooking a healthy Christmas dinner is to choose the right ingredients. The most important ingredients to choose are the protein, the vegetables, and the carbohydrates. The protein should be lean and the vegetables should be fresh. The carbohydrates should be whole grains.

Cooking the protein
 The protein should be cooked in a healthy way. The best way to cook the protein is to grill it or bake it. The protein should be cooked to the right temperature and should be garnished with fresh herbs. The protein should be served with a healthy sauce.

Choosing the right vegetables
 The vegetables should be fresh and should be cooked in a healthy way. The best way to cook the vegetables is to steam them or roast them. The vegetables should be garnished with fresh herbs. The vegetables should be served with a healthy dressing.

Not happy with just two restaurants, DJ Massimo has opened Anam, which serves authentic Vietnamese dishes.

She's a beauty queen. You still have a lot to learn about her. A lot of things are in the air.
